Planting & Transplanting

Winter is an ideal time to install new trees and shrubs.

Cooler weather allows the new plants to grow and become established before the heat of our Louisiana summers.

The key to success is not to plant the shrub or tree too deep!! Planting too deep causes the hole to hold water and the roots of the plant can rot.

Keep your plants well drained!!!

1. Lay out your flower beds.
2. Remove all grass and weeds.
3. Till up existing soil
4. Add 4-6" of additional loose soil.
5. Lay out plant material and install leaving 1" of the root ball above grade.
6. Back fill the hole with loose soil.
7. Add 2" of mulch.

Now is a great time to plant

FAQ

Q: When should I transplant a tree:

A: The best time to transplant is winter, when the plant is dormant.

Q: Should I fertilize my trees and shrubs this time of year?

A: You should only fertilize seasonal color this time of year. Wait until March to fertilize your trees and shrubs.

Q: Is it too late to plant seasonal color in my yard?

A: No. Pansies, Cabbage, Kale, Violas and Panolas perform well this time of year. Lots of colors and varieties are still available.
